Supreme Council will take up the matter to-morrow and will relax the restrictions, which means that Holland will be able to buy what she likes as well as other German neighbors.

France is strongly opposed to this contending that Dutch importations might affect the German military situation, which still gives the French great anxiety. The blockade committee is believed to be divided on the subject. Lord Reading conferred to-day with the Americans, all the indications being that the British-American plan will be adjusted by the trade section of the Versailles Frence Conference, it may now be announced. It was this information which brought to a sudden halt the general discussion of Great Britain's action and the demand voiced in the Senate by Republicans and Democrats alike for the adoption of Senator Weeks's resolution calling on the State Department for an explanation of the simaion, including some information as to what move the American industries to a normal condition.

It is not known yet whether this determination of the proposition of American industries to a normal condition.
